Re: Maintenance of the oil-water separator located at Holy Trinity Episcopal Church

Dear Ed,

Attached you will find a copy of a communication recently issued to the Holy Trinity Episcopal Church regarding a status change in the Alaska Department of Environmental Conservation (ADEC) record. As part of this change in status we need to document that the City and Borough of Juneau (CBJ) agrees to maintain the oil-water separator located on the church property.

Please sign the attached agreement and return the original to me at the above address.

Don't hesitate to contact me if you have any questions.

Thank you,

Maintenance of the oil-water separator agreement

The oil-water separator installed onsite at the Holy Trinity Episcopal Church located at 325 Gold Street in Juneau, Alaska requires yearly inspections and cleanings for the removal of accumulated sediments, oils, and other pollutants. The City and Borough of Juneau (CBJ) agrees to maintain, pump, and clean the oil-water separator every year during the month of June. DEC will contact CBJ on an annual basis to verify that the maintenance has been performed. Records of this and other maintenance activities performed on the oil-water separator will be held onsite by the Holy Trinity Episcopal Church and be available upon written or verbal request.

The City and Borough of Juneau, Public Works Department, agrees to their role as stated above in the terms of this Cleanup Complete Determination for Holy Trinity Episcopal Church.
