Unified Command hosts open house

JUNEAU, Alaska - Dorothy and Terry Cary, Juneau residents, look at a picture of the Princess Kathleen during an open house hosted by the U.S. Coast Guard and Alaska Department of Environmental Conservation at the Mendenhall Glacier Visitor Center March 4, 2010.

The 369-foot Princess Kathleen, a Canadian Pacific Railroad vessel built in 1925, grounded then later sank near Lena Point in 1952 carrying an estimated 155,000 gallons of fuel.

An effort is underway to recover oil from the Princess Kathleen.

The open house allowed the community to meet the members of the Unified Command who are leading an effort to recover oil from the Princess Kathleen that sank in 1952.
