SUBAREA CONTINGENCY PLAN AND COMMITTEE

Subarea contingency plans are essential building blocks of community emergency preparedness. They provide detailed information on local resources, response priorities, hazardous materials management procedures, and response countermeasures, and they integrate federal, state, tribal, local and industry capabilities. Subarea committees, led by governmental agencies with pollution-response authority, need your knowledge about local priorities and concerns to effectively manage plan updates. Subarea committees provide one of your best opportunities to get involved.
