Community Action Plan + Funding Work Session

Big Lake Water Quality Action Plan
6-8 p.m. Tuesday, Nov 29
at Faith Bible Fellowship

There are too many petroleum hydrocarbons in the water, according to State water quality standards. The pollution comes from gasoline-powered boats and watercraft and collects near the shore and in boat launch areas. We need local solutions that will help improve Big Lake's water quality.

- This is the seventh community work session.
- During this work session, the community and partners will convene to review and update the Community Action Plan and strategize for upcoming funding opportunities.
- Over the last year, the community has worked with local and state partners to develop a draft Action Plan.
- This summer, the community successfully implemented priority actions by working with Cook Inletkeeper and other partners.
