Nestlé Recalls Frozen Pizza Due to Possible Plastic Fragment Contamination

(JUNEAU, AK) – Nestlé USA has recalled four different DiGiorno and California Pizza Kitchen frozen pizzas that may contain fragments of clear plastic.

To locate the production codes for these specific pizzas, the consumer should look for a blue or pink rectangle on one of the side panels of the pizza box. The production code is on the second line of the printed code and is the first ten digits of the number.

Product	UPC	Production Code
California Pizza Kitchen Crispy Thin	71921 98745	3062525951 3062525952 3063525951
California Pizza Kitchen Limited Edition Grilled Chicken with Cabernet Sauce	71921 00781	3059525952
DiGiorno Crispy Flatbread Pizza Tuscan Style Chicken	71921 02663	3057525922 3058525921
DiGiorno pizzeria! Bianca/White Pizza	71921 91484	3068525951

All of the recalled pizzas were produced during February and March of 2013. Consumers and businesses are advised to check freezers for recalled pizzas.

Alaska DEC has confirmed these products were available in Alaska. To date, no illnesses or injuries have been reported in Alaska or elsewhere.

Consumers who may have purchased the recalled California Pizza Kitchen and DiGiorno pizzas with the identified production codes should not consume the pizza, but instead should contact Nestlé USA Consumer Services at 800-456-4394 or nestlepizza@casupport.com for further instructions. Hours of operation are Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. EST and this Saturday, May 4 from 12 p.m. to 8 p.m. EST.
