

Gretchen Keiser

Alaska' spill response and prevention rules were strengthened after Exxon Valdez disaster. Have we forgotten or just gotten lax?? The current rules work just fine and have prevented another shipping disaster.

ADEC should spend its time and agency resources dealing with real, current pollution problems and not waste time on something that doesn't need fixing.